Pension news

For Defined Contribution (DC) members

Welcome

Welcome to our spring issue of Pension news, the newsletter for defined contribution (DC) members of the Cummins UK Pension Plan.

As you can see, we have a new look for Pension news, which we hope you like. You'll start to see this style being used in all our Plan communications from now on, and it will be part of our revamp of the Plan website which we're currently working on for later in the year.

Thank you to everyone who took part in our survey of active members at the end of last year. We've gathered some very useful feedback and will start to cover the key issues that were raised in our future communications. One of the most popular areas has to do with wanting to understand more about investments. We've therefore included on page 10 a quick guide to the different types of investments that are available in the Plan.

Another area that members wanted to know more about was retirement options. Even if you're a long way from retirement age, it's good to know early on what you're saving for, because it can help you make decisions about how much to pay in or how to invest. You'll find more about this on page 8.

Finally, as with all our communications, we're mindful of the environment. There's an update on page 4 about the work we do to ensure our communications don't harm our planet.

I hope you find this issue of Pension news useful and interesting. As always, please get in touch if there's a particular topic you'd like to see more about in a future issue.

Congratulations to Alex Osborne, who was the winner of our prize draw from the member survey.

Our communications and the environment

We regularly send communications to keep you informed about the Plan and your benefits. While some of our communications are legal requirements, all of them aim to help you engage with your pension, understand how it works and decide what action (if any) you need to take. We use both printed and digital formats, and with over 14,500 members in the Plan, you can see how important it is for all our communications to be kind to the environment.

Our printed communications

Print is a traditional and key part of our communications. Today, many people are concerned about the sustainability of paper products and the environmental impact of full colour print processes. However, you'll be pleased to know that the print industry continues to make strides to reduce its environmental impact and ensure that printing is sustainable. For example, our printers use:

- only vegetable-based inks (rather than oil-based)
- FSC accredited, recycled paper and reusable aluminium printing plates
- full colour printing which uses less paper and significantly fewer chemicals and solvents in the set up and press cleaning than traditional one or two-colour printing.

Our printed communications arrive with you in sustainably sourced paper envelopes. Once you've finished with them, you can of course put everything in the recycling.

Our digital communications

Following the digital boom that the pandemic created, we're all much more used to doing things online for work, domestic and social reasons. Moving everything to digital might seem like a good idea, as it doesn't involve the physical resources of paper, print machinery, inks and chemicals, or the delivery miles associated with postage. However, don't be fooled into thinking that digital is automatically a 'greener' alternative.

The internet brings its own environmental cost. It needs extensive physical resources to run data centres powering servers and keeping them cool. If the internet were a country, it would be the sixth largest carbon emitter in the world. Given that 4.1 billion people (over half the world's population) now use the internet, this is hardly surprising.

While every webpage or email has its own carbon footprint, you'll be pleased to know that our pensions website produces between 0.16g and 0.35g of CO<sub>2</sub> per page, making it cleaner than most other websites. We continue to be mindful of the most efficient way to provide the Plan's digital communications, using a website that's optimised and responsive, and only sending you emails with links rather than large attachments.

Getting personal

This is why we don't bombard you with emails or with lots of post about the Plan. We only send communications when there's something important to tell you. You'll find that, increasingly, you start to receive more personalised communications from us. If we don't need to tell all our members the same information, we can categorise our messages so that we're only sending you something from the Plan that's relevant for you.

Our aim is to keep you informed and up to date, as well as making sure that what we tell you and the way we communicate is relevant, engaging and mindful of our planet.

Change to investment fund

In February 2023, we changed the name of one of the Plan's investment funds. For members who manage their own investments (self-select), the Cummins pre-retirement fund is now called the Cummins annuity-focused fund. There is no change to the underlying investment. This change was originally planned for last October but was delayed because of the volatility in the financial markets at that time. If this change affects you, we've recently written to you with full details.

In the pipeline

A new drawdown option at retirement

We're delighted to be introducing a new drawdown transfer option which will be available to Plan members at retirement. Members wishing to invest in a drawdown arrangement when accessing their Plan benefits currently must research and find their own provider. Later this year, we'll be offering a drawdown transfer option with a provider chosen and pre-checked by the Trustee. This is to ease the transfer process for members looking to use drawdown rather than making and arranging a choice from the full market.

Remember to check your benefit statement

As usual, we'll be issuing your benefit statement later on this year. Make sure you take time to check it because it's a useful annual snapshot of your fund value and explains, in today's money, how much you're on target to have saved by the time you retire. If you want to know your current fund value, you can see this by logging in via Manage my pension at any time.

What are you saving for?

What's the most expensive thing you've bought without trying it first or doing some research? A pair of shoes or a pair of jeans perhaps, or maybe a tech item like an iPad or a laptop? What about a car? Would you even consider buying a house without looking at it first?

Of course, you wouldn't arrange a mortgage but not bother to go house-hunting. It's unlikely that you'd buy a car without going for a test drive or knowing something about the different makes and models. You might buy a tech item without looking at it first – but possibly only as an upgrade and even then, you might want a particular colour or size. And most of us have bought clothes online without trying them first, but sooner or later, we need to put them on and see if they're right.

Decisions, decisions!

In a world full of choices, where just buying a cup of coffee can require several decisions – tall, decaf cappuccino – why then, are we generally in the dark about buying something that costs more than 9% of our salary – our pension?

There's no denying it – pensions are dull!

A bit like joining a gym, the results aren't immediate and it's hard to get excited about something a long way into the future. So, while your Plan savings are quietly building up over the years, it's good to know what you'll be able to do with them. Take a look at the menu opposite...

Investments – what does it all mean?

We know that investments can be complex, and it's even harder to make decisions about what's going to be best for your savings when there's so much jargon to wade through. Whether you're using the lifestyle or self-select options, here are some of the assets your pension fund could be invested in.

Equities – also called shares in a company. When you invest in equities, you own a little bit of that company and are entitled to an annual payment called a dividend. The value of shares can go up and down in the short term, but over the long term, they're usually expected to outperform other investments.

Good for: long-term growth if you're willing to ride out any short-term falls in value.

Bonds – also called corporate bonds, these are issued by a company to raise money. If you invest in bonds, you're essentially lending money to a company, who pays you interest before repaying the loan when it matures (comes to the end of the loan period).

Good for: long-term growth but generally not such a high return – or as risky – as equities.

Gilts – similar to corporate bonds but instead of being issued by a company, gilts are issued by the UK government. You can get fixed-interest gilts which pay a set rate of interest or index-linked gilts which pay interest linked to inflation.

Good for: like bonds, gilts are suitable if you're a more cautious investor or want to protect the value of your investment against the price of buying an annuity when you retire.

Property – usually an investment in commercial property like offices, shopping centres and factories rather than houses. Over the short term, property values can go up and down but it's an investment that is expected to outperform other asset types, except equities.

Good for: long-term growth if you're willing to wait.

Cash – this is like keeping money in the bank, and returns will vary in line with bank lending rates.

Good for: shorter-term investment, for example, if you're getting ready for retirement.

Diversification

Diversification is a mixture of different types of assets within a portfolio. When one type of investment is doing poorly, another might be doing well. In this way, the winners help offset the losers, and the value of the overall portfolio doesn't move up and down so much.

Pension matters

How much money will you need in retirement?

We've previously reported on the Retirement Living Standards, the guide to retirement income published by the Pensions and Lifetime Savings Association (PLSA) which shows the annual amounts needed to achieve different standards of living.

The PLSA has released updated figures. These are today's amounts, but to have the same spending power when you retire, you'll need to allow extra for future inflation.

For a single person		For a couple
£12,800	minimum covers all your needs with some left over for fun	£19,900
£23,300	moderate more financial security and flexibility	£34,000
£37,300	comfortable more financial freedom and some luxuries	£54,500

To find out more, visit <https://www.retirementlivingstandards.org.uk>

What's a good amount to have in your pension pot?

A general rule of thumb is that you'll need ten times your annual salary, so with a salary of £30,000, you'd be looking to target £300,000 in your pension pot. Remember that all your pension arrangements count towards your pot, not just your benefits from the Plan.

Let's assume you're a single person, entitled to a full State pension, and are targeting the moderate retirement income shown in the table. The State pension for 2023/24 is £10,600 a year leaving you £12,700 a year to finance from your pension savings. The other thing to remember is that income you take from a pension is taxable, once you've taken a 25% tax-free lump sum at retirement.

Beware of pension scams

Sadly, we continue to remind members to be aware of the danger of pension scams. Recent research by the Financial Conduct Authority and the Pensions Regulator found that half of pension savers don't believe they're at risk of being targeted by a pension scammer. But pension scams can happen to anyone, and no pot is too small for a scammer.

Members should also be aware that scammers are operating as so-called claims management companies and attempting to use 'subject access requests' to obtain personal information and details about a saver's pension arrangements. Please be particularly vigilant if you're approached in this context.

Scammers can be articulate and financially knowledgeable, with credible websites, testimonials and materials that are hard to distinguish from the real thing. They design attractive offers to persuade you to transfer your pension pot to them or to release funds from it. It is then invested in unusual and high-risk investments like overseas property, renewable energy bonds, forestry, storage units, or simply stolen outright.

Scam tactics include:

- contact out of the blue
- promises of high/guaranteed returns
- free pension reviews
- access to your pension before age 55
- pressure to act quickly.

Don't let a scammer ruin your retirement. You can find more information about pension scams and how to avoid them at www.fca.org.uk/scamsmart
